UNIT 6. Week 6

This week, we focused on using KQML and KIF for agent communications, discussing the strengths and weaknesses of agent communication languages, and evaluating different communication approaches.

The reading materials primarily centred on KQML, and though it was challenging, I worked to understand its syntax.

Engaging in Collaborative Discussion 2, I provided peer reviews to my fellow participants' initial posts.

Additionally, I tackled the e-Portfolio Element "Creating Agent Dialogues," honing my skills in crafting effective agent interactions.

Following a comprehensive team review of the report, we successfully completed Assignment 1. The joint effort and open communication throughout the week were instrumental in achieving our goals.

The week concluded with a seminar session, deepening my insights into the topic.